Jolly Technologies ID Flow 3.4 patch by p1n0yak0rar Q: Opening a VBA Form from the Command Bar We have a standard user form (UserForm1) which we want the user to be able to open from within the Excel worksheet by pressing a button in the worksheet. This is pretty straightforward and can be done like so: Private Sub CommandButton1_Click() UserForm1.Show End Sub What is not possible, is to open a user form from within the Command Bar (as per: Excel, Open Form from VBA using commands?) We know that these two are not compatible. But if we put our command in the command bar as described in the article, that will mean that we cannot use VBA for what we want to do. So my question is: if we put a normal command in the Command Bar (even though we do not want it to be in the form of a command), will we run into issues with accessing the worksheet? A: You can use the Excel Button's Click event as follows: Select the button in the worksheet. In the ribbon click Customize the Commands > Dialog Box, then in the "Add Event Procedure" dialog box, select the Worksheet. Click event. In the "Add Event Procedure" dialog box, click the "Add" button. Enter the following code: Private Sub Worksheet_Click() UserForm1.Show End Sub In the custom function that gets created (and that you then can right click to record, or use a macro recorder), you want to pass the commandbarid into the command which would open the form. In my button I tried: UserForm1.Show but this was giving me an error message. So I used your suggested approach of using a named range like so: CommandBars("CommandBar1").Controls("Edit2").Caption = "Edit Record"
