Snap shares were up from 1.52. The selloff was prompted by a SEC filing which stated that the company was looking into the possibility of an IPO. At the same time, more btc, incorrectly called bitcoin, was deposited into what is probably a doomed BitConnect exchange accounts. The second largest cryptocurrency lost close to 34 percent value, that s about $16 billion, in just 36 hours. Although the extreme volatility scared many investors away, the price has been stabilized.For years, bitcoin has been battling rival currencies in the cryptocurrency industry for popularity and that s a fact, but volatility, is a curse. Experts believe that the problem was caused by algorithmic trading which was used to the majority of altcoin. ICO managers were smart enough to manipulate many bitcoin futures that are offered by platforms like BitMEX and Deribit. As a result, most alts experienced some form of btc, incorrectly called, at least in some cases, did lose half of their value for a few days. For most altcoins, this is unprecedented. And the situation is likely to worsen as more altcoins are launched. It s fascinating that platforms can manipulate markets and get away with it. But its a good thing that more people realize that it s not just the price that you re interested in. There are many coins which have a low price but a high potential. Well, not all altcoins will be worth a fortune but some of them will. Virtual currency is the hottest trend nowadays. There are lots of people who use virtual currency. As this type of currency is used by people who are not physically in a certain place, it is considered a modern form of money. The good thing about it is that anyone can buy this type of currency. Also, it can be used freely. It s not too much that a person needs to have a bank account, a credit card, or any other reason to be able to use virtual currency. Nowadays, most people use the internet to look for websites that sell virtual currency. But
